

ELDER OF THE WEEK

Cecilia Cree

"Kaia'tano:ron"

Married: Paul Cree

Children: Marie, Clyde, Cynthia, Doris, Debbie

Parents: Richard and Ann Sunday

Family Life:

Her mother made baskets all the time and in the winter months. Her father would travel very long distances to go after the logs she needed for her baskets. She remembers times when it was real cold and her father would be just coming home at three in the morning. Her mother would get up to warm up his dinner and she would wake up the boys to put the horses in the barn.

Basket Makers:

Most of the women made baskets to help support their families. To be able to sell their baskets, they had to take them across the border. The police were always watching for anyone taking things across illegally. One couple who lived close to the border opened up their home to the basket makers. They could either come there and make their baskets or someone could deliver their baskets by going through the woods at night. She remembers one woman telling her about the time she and her mother were caught at the border with their baskets. They had made Easter baskets that at that time sold for thirty five cents a dozen and would have cost them a large sum of money to get their baskets back.
