In Days of Yore

A Courier feature told of Lyman Potter who pushed a wheelbarrow across the United States to win a $1,000 wager that it could not be done in less than 200 days. He started from his home on Dane street, Albany on April 10, 1878 and arrived in San Francisco on Oct. 5, of the same year, taking 178 days, five hours and three minutes in accomplishing the feat. He travelled exactly 4,085 1/2 miles.

75 Years Ago

The Courier quarterly supplement, a small four-page paper inserted in the newspaper, was devoted for the most part, to diseases and their cure.

More Comfort Wearing FALSE TEETH

Here is a pleasant way to overcome loose plate discomfort. FASTERETH, an improved powder, sprinkled on upper and lower plates holds them firmly so that they feel more comfortable. No gummy, soapy, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (not acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTERETH today, at any drug store.

George W. Sisson, M. H. Greene and Thomas I. Greene advertised their partnership, formed to operate sawmills on the Raquette river "one mile north of Potsdam."

The Courier report on the Fourth of July program noted that everyone was awakened early by the booming of cannon and that one event followed another until after midnight.

In those days, 1870, banquets in the grand manner were the order of the day. To show what mighty men there were in those days the full report on the July 4th banquet, held at the American House, which stood at Market and Raymond streets, is reprinted here-with:

Dessert.—Lager Rasins, Figs, Almonds, Pecan Nuts, Brazil Nuts, Filberts, Tea and Coffee, Wine and Cigars.

Then came the toasts and responses in the following order:

1st. The day we celebrate, our national birthday; may it not only be to ourselves but to the civilized world a day of great jubilee, joy and festivity.

Response by S. C. Crane.

2nd. George Washington and Abraham Lincoln; the one the father of his country, the other its savior; may their memory, engraven as it is upon the heart of a great nation, ever be remembered and perpetuated.

Response by Chas. O. Tappan. 3rd. The Declaration of Independence, the Rubicon of American Freedom, baptized in blood, maintained in triumph, the hope of the nineteenth century; may every tyrant on earth read it and tremble.

Response by Rev. E. Hathaway. 4th. The President of the United States; a position more honorable and more glorious than that of monarch, king, or queen.

Response by George Richards. 5th. The Governor of the State of New York; a position in honor next to the President of the United States; may wise counsel and unanimous policy ever guide and control the mind of whoever shall occupy the position.

Response by W. H. Wallace. 6th. Our Heroes; may their glorious achievements grow brighter and brighter, and their memories ever be cherished in the hearts of a grateful people.

Response by George L. Eastman. 7th. Our Country, the home of all the free, the asylum of the oppressed of the world; may she ever guard against internal strife and the encroachments of foreign powers.

Dr. Fisher, in responding to this toast, spoke of the amplitude of our domain, and of our ability to fill it. No nation ever before filled and vitalized so large a territory. Babylon may have swayed an empire as vast, but her possessions hung loose, limp, unshapen about her. Our railways, canals, cities and crowding population make all our territory to minister to that which is after all the highest test of a nation's civilization, the comfort, beauty, utility of home life.

As to foreign interference he feared none unless it should come from some other planets or stray comet, for there was no nation on this globe which could give us any solicitude as to possible encroachment.

8th. The Empire State; the first in population, the first in wealth, the first in commerce; may she ever be first in the cause of liberty and humanity.

Response by S. B. Gordon. 9th. St. Lawrence County; rich in products, patriotism and piety; the green house of society; the place of our homes; may every inhabitant thereof be proud that he is a resident of the Empire County of the Empire State.

Not responded to. 10th. The Flag of our Union; may it ever wave over the free, and ever be erected on foreign shores as the emblem of a great nation, able and ready to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Response by Hon. H. L. Knowlton. 11th. The Press; the exponent of a nation's character, the guardian of our public rights.

Response by Rev. J. S. Kidney. 12th. Schools and School Homes; the bulwarks of our nation, and the safeguard to its perpetuity.

To this, tends all that vast and growing capital invested in railroads and canals. It must be subservient to the utilities and comforts of home in the future.

Speaking of advance in the home comforts he said that in all London there could not have been found 200 years ago a dwelling which for beauty, convenience and adaptation to the comforts and enjoyments of life was equal to some now existing in this town.

Advertising to the foundation he said our problem was to leave all these people, and we could not give them liberty, which was their desire, unless we could make our thought and culture master them.

The safeguard against internal strife, he insisted, was justice and honesty in politics. He censured Gov. Scheuch's policy of levying the taxes of the government on those who would make the least complaint, as a system of the basest politics which considers how to gain elections and sustain a party rather than that nobler politics which acts on statesmanlike principles, and seeks justice to exist and ennoble the private life of all the people. Two great parties had existed in the country. Both had at one period in their career represented great principles. Did either now do so? Rather did not both represent the maxima of party tactics rather than those nobler principles which exalt a State?

Response by Rev. M. McViney. Hon. Bloomfield Usher presided at the dinner table with dignity and ability.

The issue of the Courier published after the banquet carried the following note:

"The prolonged absence of the editor, and the haste and confusion incident to the celebration of our national anniversary, will we trust, cause our readers to overlook any error of omission or commission apparent in this issue of the paper."

Some words fool you:

BAND means...

BAND means...

but BALLANTINE Ale & Beer always means...

Purity, Body, Flavor!

Some bands are hard on the ears, some hard on the eyes. There's the brass band that makes music. There's the silk band on your hat. Band is certainly a confusing word!

Ballantine is certainly not! Ballantine always means PURITY, BODY, FLAVOR... the three qualities symbolized by Peter Ballantine's famous 3-ring trade mark. Meet and enjoy them tonight.
