Voters Approve $1,400,000 Plan For Construction

Norwood—A bond issue to rai $1,400,000 for the Norwood-Norfolk Central School building pr gram gained the support of ers at the polls Jan. 10. Votes approving the resolution num ed more than the necessary t thirds majority.

Of the total 1001 votes cast, 776 were for the bond issue, 223 registered disapproval and two were invalid.

Opposition to the whole plan of the combined school district never materalized as strongly as the central school's supporters feared. In 1949 on the first vote on the issue of centralizing the 17 districts in the area, the results were 827 in favor and 205 against.

The only time a serious split developed was last fall when residents had to choose between the Smith-Raymond site, midway between the villages of Norwood and Norfolk, and the McGregor property on the Norfolk-Raymondville highway. At that time, the vote was 832 for the Smith-Raymond site and 508 for the opposite site, still a substantial majority.

The proposed school will be ready for use in the fall of 1952 at the earliest observers believe. The firm of Sargent, Webster, Crenshaw and Folley of Watertown has been chosen as achitects.

Now that the money is available the next step is to advertise for bids on construction and school equipment. Of the $1,400,000, the sum of $1,335,000 will be used for the new building and grounds and the sum of $65,000 will be used to convert the present buildings for use as a grade school.

State aid will come to about two-thirds of the total with the taxpayers paying the rest over a period of 30 years the period during which the bonds will mature.

Plan Final Rites For T. Rowland

Norwood — Final rites for Thomas E. Rowland, 79, a retired railroad conductor, will be held in Norwood tomorrow, Jan. 19. Mr. Rowland died suddenly of a heart attack at 2:30 p.m., Jan. 16, in his home at 21 Baldwin Ave.

He was born Nov. 5, 1871 in Morristown, a son of Michael and Bridget Leary Rowland. He was married on Nov. 3, 1907 to Miss Catherine Mackey. The ceremony was performed in Ogdensburg by the Rev. Mr. Cole.

The couple had lived in Norwood since 1914. Mr. Rowland retired on Jan. 28, 1938.

The body was removed to the Buck Funeral Home. A prayer service will be held at 8:30 a.m. and a funeral service at 9 at St. Andrews Church.

Mr. Rowland is survived by his wife, four sisters, Mrs. Ray (Genevieve) Strader of Syracuse; Mrs. Paul De Witt of Syracuse; Mrs. Mabel Coll of Rahway, N. J. and Mrs. James (Grace) McGonigle of Wildwood, N. J.; also twin sisters, Miss Elizabeth and Miss Mary Rowland of Morristown.
