Measles Termed Not Trivial As Suspected

Health experts have been complaining lately about measles. Not their own—other people's. And no wonder. Here is an old-time contagious disease that could easily be scratched from the list. But it's still permitted to hang around.

But if the outlook for abolishing measles seems spotty right now, don't blame medical science. The doctors and researchers have done their part of the job by developing a safe and efficient vaccine. Trouble is that parents haven't been bothering to get Junior vaccinated. Result: half a million cases are still reported every year, and the U.S. Public Health Service estimates that 10 times as many go unreported.

Ninety per cent of American children have measles by the time they are 15, according to Dr. Luther L. Terry, U.S. Surgeon General. He also points out that the disease isn't as harmless as many parents think. Complications often result, and these include serious diseases such as encephalitis and pneumonia. About 10 per cent of the encephalitis patients die, according to government health statistics. Of those that recover, 15 to 20 per cent are left with such unpleasant relics as mental retardation, sight or hearing defects, or behavior disorders.

Measles, in short, is nothing trivial despite a general feeling of complacency about it. And the irony of it all is that there is no real excuse for its remaining a guest in your house. It could be substantially wiped out in this country in a short time if the vaccine were widely used.

The Public Health Service has appealed to all parents to have their children immunized against measles during 1965. With only seven million vaccinated so far, there are still 20 million to go. If you have children who lack measles immunity, your Christmas Seal association suggests that right now is the time to send them to the doctor for the protection they need.

A farm pond stocked with fish provides recreation and good eating for the whole family. Cornell bulletin 1089 "Fish Management in New York Farm Ponds" provides information for stocking ponds with surface areas up to two acres and maximum depths of seven to 15 feet. STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS from the Bible

Yet am I with you in the spirit...beholding your order. —(Col. 2:5)

God blesses us with order, and we have plenty of time. We live in eternity. It is the right use of this particular moment in which we are living that is important. If we fill this moment with constructive, positive thought, word or action, we need not be concerned with the next day, month or year. Let's live in the now.

Methodist Home For Children

New Building To Be Consecrated At Methodist Home For Children

Williamsville—A new $260,000 cottage for boys at the Methodist Home for Children here will be consecrated at services at the Home on Sunday, June 27, at 3 p.m.

Bishop W. Ralph Ward of the Syracuse Area of the Methodist Church, will be the principal speaker. Ross B. Trowbridge, president of the Board of Managers of the Home, will preside.

The new cottage, which will house 14 boys and house parents, will be known as the Rev. Harry H. and Hattie Marsh Building. Mr. Witham, who lives at 6800 Main St., Williamsville, served as superintendent of the Methodist Home for Children from 1926 to 1949. He will participate in the consecration ceremonies.

The new cottage contains 14 rooms for boys, dining room, two lounges, a game room, and quarters for the house parents.

Part of the funds for the new structure were provided through a $5,000 gift from the Josephine Goodyear Foundation, and through funds from the estate of the late Miss Ada C. Stettenbenz. A plaque commemorating Miss Stettenbenz will be placed in the game room.

The Board of Managers of the Home borrowed $100,000 to complete the building.

A second cottage for boys is still needed at the Home, to complete the first phase of the building program for which a $500,000 fund-raising campaign is underway.

The first structure to be completed in the building program is the Robert Burns Lynde Memorial Chapel and Educational Building. The $250,000 Building was made possible by a $120,000 bequest from Bertha Burns Lynde of Delavan, in memory of her son Robert.

The Methodist Home for Children, which has served most of New York State and parts of New England for more than 50 years, is an agency for the care and training of emotionally disturbed boys and girls.

SUMMER SCHEDULE

Beginning Sunday, July 4, and continuing throughout the months of July and August, First Methodist Church in Potsdam will follow its summer schedule of worship services.

Morning worship will be held in the sanctuary beginning at 9:30 a.m. each Sunday during these two months. The choir will plan to rehearse at 9, directly preceding the services each week; with an additional brief rehearsal on Sundays directly following the morning service.

The Rev. William Caldwell is the minister in charge and Prof. James Autenrith is director of the choir and church organist.

Pilgrimage Stops, Eats In Potsdam

The Heenan Pilgrimage for the Handicapped from Utica stopped in Potsdam for lunch one day recently, enroute to the Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre in Canada.

A total of 49 persons were in the caravan of three private cars and a bus, including several wheel chair patients, three registered nurses, one orderly, four firemen, two nuns, one priest and the three women drivers.

The caravan was greeted in Potsdam by Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Dennee, former Uticans; and Mrs. Richard Kukuk, president and representative of the Altar Rosary Society of St. Mary's Church.

Money for this charitable pilgrimage for the handicapped is raised through individual and volunteer donations. An annual card party is held also.

Three of the lay volunteers are registered nurses who donate part of their free time toward the project. Four members of the Utica Fire department and one orderly take a week of their vacations to assist where they are needed in lifting patients, etc.
