

Title I Summer School Over

The final bell of Norwood - Norfolk Central School's first Title I summer school will ring tomorrow and draw to a close a program whereby about 200 pre-first through sixth grade children received intensive teaching in reading and arithmetic at the Norwood and Norfolk Elementary Schools. Raymondville children attending the school were enrolled at Norfolk. Most of the children attending these classes were promoted in June but needed additional help in these two subjects. Children from both Parochial and public school are attending the classes.

Shaws observe Golden Wedding

Norwood — Mr. and Mrs. Mason Shaw, life long residents of Dailey Ridge, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Aug. 8. Because of Mrs. Shaw's poor health, no special observance marked the occasion.

Miss Ruth M. Worthing, daughter of Russell and Ida Worthing, Norwood, and Mason Shaw, son of John and Adela Shaw, Madrid were united in marriage Aug. 8, 1916 at the Methodist Church, Potsdam with the Rev. Frederick R. Griffiths, pastor, performing the ceremony. Attendees were Mrs. W. W. Woods, and Mrs. F. J. Donovan, both of Malone and aunts of the bride.

The couple moved onto a farm in the Dailey Ridge area and lived there until 1960 when poor health forced them to sell the farm and purchase a mobile home. They still reside in the vicinity of their former home.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Shaw were born in the Town of Potsdam. Mrs. Shaw received her education in Norwood Schools and Mr. Shaw attended Madrid schools. Both were members of the Dailey Ridge Presbyterian Church before it closed.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw enjoy gardening and flower raising. Before her illness, Mrs. Shaw has had as many as 1,200 African violets at one time.

Two other members of the Shaw family and their spouses will celebrate golden wedding anniversaries this year: Mr. and Mrs. Truman Shaw on Sept. 6; and Earl and Leila Shaw Claffey on Oct. 26.

position with ALCOA. Prior to his graduation from college in June, the couple made their home in Schenectady.

Word has been received here that Richard Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Walker, North Main Street, has been promoted to Pfc. at Fort Lewis, Wash. where he is training in big weapons. Dick is expected to be home on leave Sept. 2 and will return to Fort Lewis Sept. 15 prior to shipping out for Vietnam.

School Centralization brings Many Changes

By Alice MacArthur and Thelma Wilson

Part 3
In 1957 Bishop James Navagh (then Bishop of the Diocese of Ogdensburg) decreed that a parochial school would be built in Norwood. Ground for the school was donated by the Fiacco family and pledges were solicited by the Rev. Msgr. Francis Maguire.

After two years of building, at a cost of $125,000, St. Andrew's Parochial School opened with 122 pupils in grades 1-4. The plan was to offer an additional grade each year until the first eight grades could be offered; (kindergarten was not included.) This objective has since been accomplished, along with the construction of a convent next to the school building at a cost of $84,000.

Co-op Board
By an Act of the State Legislature in 1948 it became possible to establish a Board of Cooperative Educational Services in the Third Supervisory District of St. Lawrence County, for the purpose of carrying out a program of shared educational services among the schools of any supervisory district and/or between two or more supervisory districts.

The special services made possible through the BOCES in Supervisory District #3 in St. Lawrence County, of which Norwood - Norfolk Central School is a part, are those which an individual school district does not need or cannot afford on a full-time basis. Such special services might include: Psychology Pupil Personnel, Health Services and Vocational Educational Services.

In an attempt to meet the recognized needs of people in a changing society the 88th Congress established new landmarks in the field of Education—aid for higher education and community colleges, vocational education, manpower development and training, educational television, education for the handicapped, anti-poverty programs and other special programs.

Vo-Ed
Of the several Acts passed by Congress, two have great significance for Vocational Education (and for this area): The Vocational Education Act, known as Public Law 88-210 and Manpower Development and Training Act 87-415. The Vocational Education Act 88-210 made available several millions of dollars to each state to be used for Vocational Education for high school students in accordance with an approved State plan. The Manpower Development and Training Act made available several millions of dollars for the training of unemployed or under-employed adults.

The Vocational Industrial Cooperative Program (VIC), introduced in this area in 1960, provided an opportunity for interested students in Norwood, and the three other schools in the Third Supervisory District of St. Lawrence County, to enter semi-skilled or skilled employment on an apprentice type basis. The student attends the home school for a half-day. In school they receive instructions related to their employment; the other half-day is set aside for on-the-job training. On-the-job training is provided by an employer who hires, and trains the student to meet his job requirements.

Co-Ordinator
In 1960 the Board of Cooperative Educational Services employed a Co-Ordinator to supervise the students on-the-job and to teach the related work in their respective home out of San Francisco, they drove across the country, visiting many points of interest along the way and stopping to visit friends and relatives.

New Post
Mr. Stever has been named to the American Embassy in Frankfurt, Germany and the family will leave the States for their new post in the near future.

Mrs. Stever cites Japanese customs

Mrs. Gerald R. Dockum entertained at her home Monday afternoon in honor of her sister, Mrs. Edward Stever, the former Madge Jenner, who with her husband and two sons, is visiting relatives in Norwood after spending the last four years in Tokyo, Japan where he served as an Attache at the United States Embassy.

Mrs. Stever told the guests many interesting things about the day-to-day living in Tokyo, the world's largest city with a main street like that of any western city but with side streets typical of old Japan, complete with Geisha girls and rickshaws. She spoke of the natural beauty of Japan, the industriousness of the people in building up the nation to modern standards. The Japanese people copy western ways, especially American, while still retaining their own culture.

Illiteracy is virtually unknown, Mrs. Stever said, and students are easily identified as they all wear distinctive uniforms. Classes in flower arranging, English and other subjects are popular among the people. Mrs. Stever conducted classes in conversational English on a volunteer basis to both Japanese men and women. The traditional Japanese theatre and puppet theatre, Kubki and noh are very popular.

Ambassadors
All members of the Embassy staff and their families are in a sense ambassadors of the United States for it is through them that the Japanese people learn the truth about the average American and the American way of life.

The Japanese are very interested in America and ask many questions about the country and its customs. During her stay in Japan, Mrs. Stever was an active club woman and was a member of the Japanese International Women's Club, the International Ladies Benevolent Society, St. Mary's Mothers Club and the Embassy Wives Club.

The Stever sons, Ted, 13 and John, 15, attended St. Mary's International School, a little United Nations with students from 47 countries and representing many religions. Both boys earned the brown belt in Judo at classes held for the boys of Embassy families. While not speaking the Japanese language fluently, the boys and their parents learned basic phrases and could get by.

The returnees flew from Japan to Hawaii where they spent a few days before flying to San Francisco. Finding it impossible to get a plane out of San Francisco, they

It never touches a drop.
You couldn't put water in a Volkswagen if you wanted to. Or anti-freeze either. The VW engine is cooled by air. It doesn't have a radiator. Or any of the usual radiator problems. No hose to leak or clog or run up costly repair bills. Nothing to overheat or boil over in hot weather. (You never see a VW cooling off by the side of the road.) Nothing to freeze in cold weather. The money you save on anti-freeze is a dandy little dividend. You get more dividends when it comes to gas and oil. The VW averages 29 miles to the gallon of gas. Sometimes even more. Sometimes a little less. Depending on how you drive. You can almost forget about oil. The VW rarely needs it between changes. Tires go a long way, too. Common wear is 40,000 miles. Maybe that's why so many people are going Volkswagen. It's not a car that spends your money like water.

Had a nice surprise in the form of a telephone call from Elmer Irvine who wanted to tell me of the good progress he has been making in recovering from a severe heart attack suffered over the July 4th weekend while he and Mrs. Irvine were visiting at the home of their son, Oland and family in Elmira. Irvine was a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital at Elmira until July 30th when he was brought home by ambulance.
