Discusses Reading Development

Dr. Clifford Kolson, director of the Reading Center at the State University College at Potsdam, talked about many of the quackery ideas and methods being used to teach young children to read, when he addressed the leaders recognition banquet of the St. Lawrence County 4-H Program.
The banquet was sponsored by the St. Lawrence County Bankers' Association for 4-H leaders and guests at the Hermon-DeKalb Central School last Wednesday.
Dr. Kolson said there are certain things parents can do to help their children learn to read: 1. Set a good example, read a book or magazine once in a while; 2. Give the child responsibility; 3. Give the teacher support in whatever she asks your child to do.

Give your child varied experiences.
Mrs. Rosabelle Meashaw of Potsdam and William Martin of Gouverneur, members of the 4-H Executive Committee, presented leadership pins to the following area persons:
Five year pins: Mrs. Vaughn Matthe of Potsdam and Mrs. Maxwell Fisher of Madrid.
