Two From Potsdam Among Those Arrested In Powerline Protest

CANTON- Two Potsdam residents were among five protesters arrested last Tuesday evening in the second day of a three-day demonstration against the construction of the 765 kV powerline.

Arrested from Potsdam were Margaret Weitzmann, 51, 19 Garden St. and Frederick J. Burger, 23, same address. Others charged by sheriff's deputies were Alice Norman, 48, Edwards; Carol J. Dunn, 25, Boonville; and Morris Lupia, 26, Boonville.

Weitzmann, Burger, and Norman were charged with trespassing, according to deputies. They were issued appearance tickets and were scheduled to appear in Canton Town Court Thursday morning. Deputies said that Dunn and Lupia were arraigned before Canton Town Justice John Moore on charges of trespassing and criminal tampering. Lupia pleaded guilty to both charges and paid a total of $150 in fines. Dunn pleaded guilty to the trespassing charge but not guilty to the criminal tampering charge. She paid a $50 fine.

According to deputies, the arrests were made in two different locations: along the Jingleville Road in Canton and along Route 11 in Canton, both spots where the high power line towers are under construction.

Arrested earlier in the day Tuesday was Carolyn Selleck, Canton. She was charged with trespassing, but the charge was reportedly dismissed by Canton Justice John Oliver.

Grand Larceny Charge Lodged

Gerald Lewis Mossow, 38, New Milford, Conn., charged with third degree grand larceny, was remanded last Wednesday to St. Lawrence County Jail after arriving before Potsdam Village Justice Robert Halliday.

Judge Halliday set bail at $1,000 on the felony charge. Mossow is being held for grand jury action.

Mossow faces the felony charge in connection with some $245 worth of bad checks that were written to Murphy's Shell Service Station, according to village police.

Mossow recently served 30 days in county jail in connection with issuing bad checks, according to sheriff's deputies. In fact, Potsdam police arrested him last Wednesday morning as he was being released from the previous incarceration. He was arraigned in village court that morning.

Policeman Struck
