Pre-Retirement Course Offered

OGDENSBURG — A pre-retirement seminar for people 55 and over will be held at the Ogdensburg Social Security office at 7 p.m., Jan. 28.

The seminar should be useful for people interested in learning more about Social Security retirement benefits.

The program will include: when to file, what documents are needed for each type of benefit, full explanation of retirement benefits, survivors and disability benefits. A full discussion on Medicare will also be included.

These monthly seminars are designed so people will not miss out on benefits they are due. Each session will be limited to 25 people, and should be particularly attractive to those people who find it difficult to get away from work during the day.

Anyone interested in attending the retirement seminar should call the Ogdensburg Social Security office at 393-0880 and make a reservation.

Once 25 people have been received, people will be placed on a list for the following month's seminar.
